

Is your care home embracing technology?

Is it working for you?

Do you feel technology needs to be utilised but don't know where to start?

Innovation and technology can create social care services for the future. In research over 500 managers and staff in adult social care services were asked about their digital capabilities, experiences and attitudes. The results showed that more than 95% used digital technology in their work, and the great majority are strongly positive about the potential of digital technology to improve efficiency and quality of care, challenging the notion that social care and technology don't mix.
